Rules Of Conduct Cycling Days

We want to be with each other, of course, a sporting and especially pleasant camp. Because we have a large group, we need to have some things to each other. These are clearly discussed during the WSD, but to get what to call it:

What the group is concerned:

The manners Cycling Incentive days:

- Respect and accept everyone.
- Accept authority, be polite.
- Do not hurt each other.
- Do not use obscene language.
- Make other people's arguing not your arguing.
- Keep out of other people's stuff.
- Stay sporty and cozy (also as it once what less)
- Make it a party week of.

Look upon arrival on the Board in which room and at which team you are classified. Sign up at team leader there and you live there this stuff in:

Health insurance, license, any instructions for use of drugs/diet.

Address to which parents/guardians and phone number.

The registration fee is not refunded if you stay away without valid reason or the cycling week interrupts.

Take good care of yourself and your material.

Pay close attention to your own body care. Shower and/or were you regularly, especially after the end of a match. Wash your hands before eating. Do not put wet clothes in your suitcase, but this first dry on the Clothesline in front of the building.

Never go somewhere without first against someone of the leadership to say. We need to know at any time of the day where everyone is and what they do. This is for everyone's safety.
